About Me

My name is Terry Tortomasi. I was born and raised on the Southshore. I moved to the Northshore 12 years ago. For the past 25 years I have been in the orthodontic business doing every job possible. Frankly, I was burned out and couldn't take another day of the same old job doing the same old things. I knew that I wanted a career change. I wanted to do something different and quickly found out that the skills I had were not transferable to a different industry. Through several late night conversations with my husband Mark, we searched and searched for what it was I wanted to do. What would make me happy? Then through many outside sources, including an old school mate, Pat, it was clear. I should utilize my love for animals and start a business for myself.

Stress free boarding in your home

Dogs and cats are bonded to their owners and their environment. They don't adapt to change like we do especially when that change involves being away from you in a completely strange place. They don't have the ability to realize that you will be coming back for them so often times boarding ends up being a very stressful situation for your pet.

With in-home pet sitting there is minimal interruption to your pet's routine. We try to feed them and let them out on the same schedule that they are used to when you're home. With boarding, your pet is on the schedule of the facility. It is just not feasible for them to accommodate everyone's needs.
